

The School of Human Sciences

The School of Human Sciences offers the Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees in Rural Studies with a concentration in Rural Social and Community Affairs; and freshman and sophomore programs in Criminal Justice, Education, Family and Consumer Sciences, Human Services (Social Work), Physical Education, Psychology, and Sociology, leading to either the Associate of Arts or the Associate of Science degree, depending upon major, and to further study at the senior college. The major part of each program for the freshman and sophomore years consists of courses that provide a sound foundation in the humanities, natural and behavioral sciences and mathematics as well as the basic courses in the discipline specific area. The junior and senior years consist of an intensive study in one of the selected disciplines.

The Associate of Applied Science degree in Criminal Justice – Law Enforcement and the Instructional Support Personnel certificate are also offered within the School of Human Sciences. The A.A.S. in Criminal Justice prepares a student for immediate employment upon graduation. A student completing this program may also obtain their Georgia P.O.S.T. Basic Peace Officer Certification through successful completion of the South Georgia Police Academy before graduation.

A student augments Human Sciences course work by extensive practical experience and by co-curricular involvement.

RURAL STUDIES IN THE SCHOOL OF HUMAN SCIENCES

The School of Human Sciences offers a program of study that lead to the B.A. or B. S. degrees in Rural Studies: Rural Social and Community Affairs. The degree concentration builds upon the basic knowledge, skills, and values provided by the College Core Curriculum while preparing students for a wide range of careers as well as for graduate study in numerous fields. The interdisciplinary degree addresses the social, demographic, political, and cultural aspects of rural development in North America and prepares students to identify needs and to offer workable solutions for issues of the changing rural landscape. The program prepares students for work in government, non-profit, and private sector organizations that deal with rural issues, such as Habitat for Humanity, AmericCorps, the Southern Rural Development Center and also with Main Street programs and others of similar nature; or be ready to enter professions or graduate school programs in areas such as rural sociology, global studies, law, and others. The degree emphasizes the importance of critical thinking skills, encourages an appreciation of diverse cultural perspectives, and develops a greater understanding of the issues particular to the rural environment to provide an avenue of self-knowledge, cultural understanding, and social responsibility.

Students seeking to enter the Rural Studies program must have a 2.5 GPA and a minimum of 42 hours of collegiate credit, and admission to the Rural Studies program; transfer students must meet transfer requirements for the College. Acceptance to ABAC does not guarantee acceptance into the Rural Studies program.
