Cassidy Reeh, a Rural Studies Writing and Communication major from Lexington, S.C., won the essay competition during the Ms. ABAC contest on Tuesday night at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College. She also finished third runner-up overall in the pageant.

Lexington Coed Wins Essay Award at Ms. ABAC

TIFTON— Cassidy Reeh, a Rural Studies Writing and Communication major from Lexington, S.C., won the essay competition during the Ms. ABAC contest at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College. Reeh was also a member of the top five finalists, finishing the competition as third runner-up.
Sponsored by ABAC Collegiate FFA, Reeh is the daughter of Beth and Chris Duncan. She is the club president and has served as an officer for the past three years. In addition to her work with FFA, Reeh is a member of Sigma Alpha sorority at ABAC. She will be traveling to India in March with the Rural Studies program and hopes to document the similarities and struggles of rural Indian farmers and American farmers.

Kristen Card, a junior Biology major from Cordele, won the title of Ms. ABAC. Other finalists included Sarah O’Neal, a Rural Studies Writing and Communication major from Tifton, first runner-up; Victoria Powell, a Biology major from Metter, second runner-up; and Caraline Gordon, a Dental Hygiene major from Moultrie, fourth runner-up.

Card also won the interview competition and Powell received both the Ms. Congeniality and People’s Choice awards.

The event was produced by the ABAC Ag Business Club.

###